

In-demand skills your clients need for their tech-enabled future

March of Dimes Canada's SkillingUp program is more than a digital training program; it's an important solution for agencies and their clients. Through digital learning pathways, individuals with disabilities can align their skills with the demands of the tech-driven job market. SkillingUp can provide your clients with the essential digital competencies they need to thrive.

How SkillingUp Benefits Your Agency

Enhanced Employability: Free training and certification increase your clients' skills, making them more competitive in the job market and increasing your agency's overall success rate.

Complementary Job Development: SkillingUp's job development support complements your agency's efforts by providing your clients with additional job-finding assistance. This can help reduce your workload and improve client employment outcomes.

Client-Centric Approach: Your clients remain your clients while accessing SkillingUp. The program is corporately funded, so it won't affect your agency's funding or client relationships.

Expanded Support: SkillingUp helps you reach your performance outcomes by collaborating to increase employment opportunities for your clients. Partner with us today and offer your clients the ability to thrive in the digital era.
